The Bleeting of Republican Clabs.
The great gathering of representative of the Republican clubs of the country is a novely in politica. There has never before been such a meeting of any party outside of the National Conventions. The response from the clubs had far surpassed all expectation. This indicates not only life in the party, but a wide belief that a larger field of usefulness is about to be opened to Republican clubs.

Hitherto the Republican clubs have gone along each in its own way, few drawing anything from the common ex-perione. But this great fund of common experience can be made available to all the Republican clubs of the country, for their guidance and their profit.

There could be with little trouble and expense a national organization of Republican clubs that would prove one of the most valuable adjuncts to the regular party machinery. This, we hope, will be one of the results of the meeting now being held in New York.

A Little Free Trade Bosh.

Mr. Mills, of Texas, who is to be at the head of the Mays and Means Committee, makes haste to give the President's mee sage and good second. In the course of his few feeble remarks, Mr. Mills talks the same kind of free trade bosh with which readers of Cobden Club pamphlets and other British literature of that school are Remarks Mr. Mills: "The President has laid down in his message the true principles—tax luxuries high, necessaries of life low, if taxed at all. People can do without tobacco essier than they can do without shirts and shoes."

All Mills shares the delusion of other free traders, that a customs duty is neces sarily and always a tax on the consumer. English manufacturers have learned that this is not true. They complain that they, not the American consumers of their products, pay the exorbitant duty exacted at the Customs Houses of the United States.

An American twitted a manufacturer of woolen fabrics in Bradford, England, by of woolen fabrics in Bradford, England, by saying to him. "O, you have no occasion to find fault with the new French tariff. Don't you remember that your economists have been a tree bring impoverished by the tax we have to pay on your English clother." The English manufacturer replied that he believed that was true in theory, but it was the practice that worried him. As a matter of fact he had to pay the French market, and he never get back what he paid.

Note that he believed that he had to pay the French market, and he never get back what he paid.

us pleasure to show him a number of stores in which he can buy an excellent shirt for half a dollar and a good stout pair of shees for two dollars. Any man who is employed at laboring wages can buy two good white shirts with one day's pay. Take away the laborer's wages, and it would be of little interest to him that the same shirts were selling at ten cents apiece. That is the point.

THE THIRD PARTY MOVE. A Prohibitionist Who Belleves in a Nor Partisan Fight for the Amendment. To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

o the Editor of the Intelligencer.
Sin:—From present indications there will be a stronucus effort made by some of the leaders of the prohibitory move-ment to organize a third party for our State canvass next year. It appears that there are some so-called advocates of prohibition who are determined "to rule or ruin." Subsequent to the adjournmen of the last Legislature a conference of the friends of temperance was held in Parkersburg, in which conference it was agreed to make the canvaes for the prohibitory amendment regardless of party predilection, conveying the impression that Republicans and Damocrats were expected to vote for the amendment without disturbing their party fealty, and further indicating that this plan of conducting the canvaes was preferable to organizing a party to make a fight for the amendment. But recently some of the apostice of temperance have discovered that it is necessary to organize a third party inorder that they may elect members to the Legislature to enact, laws to enforce the provisions of the amendment, provided the people ratify it.

This is a great absurdity, for after years of experimenting the third party has not increased in ratio with the population of the country. It was stronger at its inception comparatively than it is now. The cause of temperance has advanced, the contract of the provision, and in princing it of the last Legislature a conference of the

Stater, and at one time it threatened to become a party of huge proportions, but it collapsed.

The third party men think that like the abolitionists, they will be successful after awhile. It should be remembered that the abolition party was never successful as a party until it merged into the Republican party, which is a party of broad and comprehensive principles, and was not an abolition party, but was only opposed to introducing slavery into the territories yet to be settled. The slaveholders themselves brought about the abolition of slavery by their causeless and unjustifiable rebellion.
There is a good showing for the ratifica-unjustifiable rebellion.

There is a good showing for the ratification of the amendment, if its friends, like unskillful accouchers, do not strangle the babe at its birth. Messra. Carokadon, like Johnson et id omne genus are pursuing a policy which will down the cause they are attempting to save. Promintrion.

In April next the Grand Lodge of the Knight; of Honor of West Virginia will assemble in official session at Morgantown, and the local lodge here is already making preparations for the event. After the business of the order is transacted there will be a grand banquet given, and it is hoped and believed that the brethren will receive as handsome entertainment in the Modern Athens as they have ever received elsewhere in the State.—Morgantown Post.

Mr. Mills chares, also, the President's perturbed state of mind over the tariff on "the necessaries of life," and here is where the Democratic economists propose to begin the benign work of making the people rich by first imporerishing them—to benight the consumer by taking from the bread-winner his chance to win his bread. If all the consumers could be ranged on one side and all the producers on the other, after the fashion of the sheep and the goats, the one rank having no possible interest in the welfare of the other, then there might be something in the talk of cheappening the necessaries of life, Bat society is so constituted, with as much scarcely been a factor, for in those States in which prohibition has become an actuality it was accomplished through the agency of temperance men of the old political parties, and if the amendment be ratified by the votes of Republicans and Democrate, they will certainly elect legislators who will enact laws to enforce it. It is surprising that a man of Mr. Carakadon's ability should take the ground that he occupies on this question. It can only be accounted for on the hypothesis that his nature is a little topay, and knowing, as he does, that he is a brilliant third party head-light, he is fond of playing Jupiter Yonans, and wishes to amuse thistory of this government has demonstrated the fact that no political party based upon a moral idea, if we take a retro-spective view of the history of parties in the United States, it will sustain what is here stated.
